

Lucerne, Switzerland, October 5 2016

RMI Analytics AG publishes the latest edition of its Brewing Raw Material Journal.

On October 4 RMI Analytics AG published the latest bi-weekly edition of the industry acclaimed Brewing Raw Material Journal (BRMJ).

In the BRMJ RMI Analytics reported:

EU barley markets begin to stabilize with only small price declines over the last week.

French markets see seller interest on the 2016 crop buy buyers look towards 2017 with prices moving accordingly.

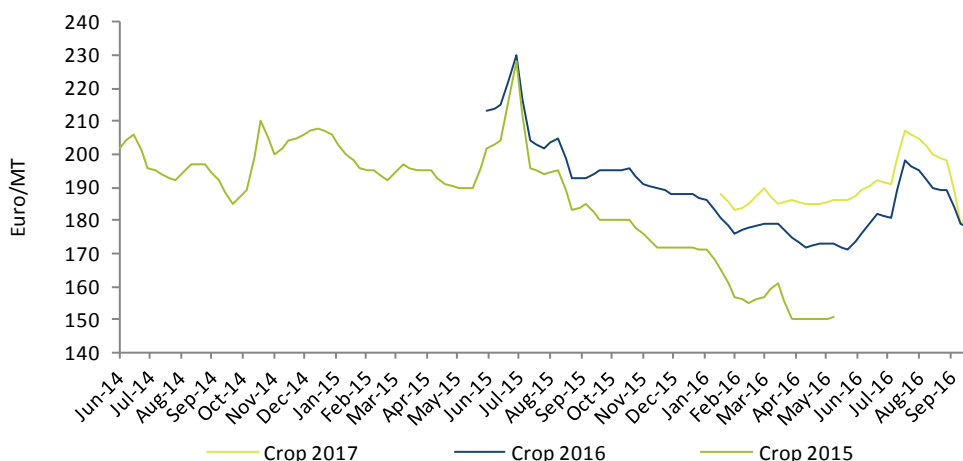

Farmers aren't hurrying to sell grain in Denmark or Sweden.

Australian crops hit by massive rains in recent days with impact unclear.

Canadian farmers take advantage of a sunny weekend to get harvest close to completion.

SAB/AB-InBev deal is approved by shareholders.

2rs Malting barley prices (FOB Creil)

Address:

Museggstrasse, 8
CH-6004 Lucerne,
Switzerland

info@rmi-analytics.com

www.rmi-analytics.com

FAX: +41 41 379 7741

TEL: +41 79 613 3217

05.10.2016

Notes to editors

RMI Analytics AG is a Swiss limited liability company which provides market insights, creates networking platforms and offers advisory services for the barley, malt and beer industry. RMI Analytics aims to help its customers making better decision and to be recognized as the adviser of choice for brewing raw materials.

For more information concerning the detailed Journal please contact

info@RMI-Analytics.com