

Lucerne, Switzerland, November 16 2016

RMI Analytics AG publishes the latest edition of its Brewing Raw Material Journal.

On November 15 RMI Analytics AG published the latest bi-weekly edition of the industry acclaimed Brewing Raw Material Journal (BRMJ).

In the BRMJ RMI Analytics reported:

Brau Beviale fails to stoke any further moves in the malting barley market.

French market remains blocked due to lack of farmer selling and high premiums over other origins.

UK trade washes out deals to sell on the domestic market following currency moves.

Australia's crops are slowly being harvested with quality better than expected in some areas.

South America's malting barley S&D looks better with the chance of more Argentinian exports.

Mexico's brewers hit by impact of President Trump, Carlsberg grows in India and buyers out in force for SAB/ABI's Eastern European assets.

Notes to editors

RMI Analytics AG is a Swiss limited liability company which provides market insights, creates networking platforms and offers advisory services for the barley, malt and beer industry. RMI Analytics aims to help its customers making better decision and to be recognized as the adviser of choice for brewing raw materials.

For more information concerning the detailed Journal please contact

info@RMI-Analytics.com

Address:

Museggstrasse, 8
CH-6004 Lucerne,
Switzerland

info@rmi-analytics.com

www.rmi-analytics.com

FAX: +41 41 379 7741

TEL: +41 79 613 3217

16.11.2016